~The Story of Fancy Hill~

Fancy Hill, known as one of the Seven Hills of Rockbridge County is a fastidiously maintained mansion built for Thomas Welch and his wife, Sarah Grigsby, in the early to mid 1800s. The first building campaign was completed ca. 1821 and consisted of a brick, five-bay, center passage home that cost $1,350 to build. Approximately ten years later, a second building campaign created the impressive, eight-bay Federal Style mansion. Subsequent additions and thoughtful renovations have produced the home as it stands today; with two, light-filled porticos, grande millwork throughout, a spacious, yet understated kitchen that is in-keeping with Federal style design elements, and an attached two-car garage; the style of which is not discernible from the front facade and retains the imposing
